Subject: Exclusion from:

In re Capacitors Antitrust Litigation – All Indirect Purchaser Actions, Master File No. 3:14-cv-03264-JD (the “Action”)

Dear Honorable District Judge James Donato and Honorable Representatives,

I William (B) Higinbotham, of 8055 112th St N, Apt 402, Seminole, FL, 33772, Phone# 631-260-9401; hereby ask that I be Excluded from In re Capacitors Antitrust Litigation – All Indirect Purchaser Actions, Master File No. 3:14-cv-03264-JD (the “Action”).

As a former Computer and Switching System Specialist in the US Air Force and in-house technician at Brookhaven National Laboratory, I find these lawsuits a waste of money. I have yet to see anyone get enough money from these lawsuits to actually buy a new computer or backup unit, etc. The manufacturers on the other had have a legitimate complaints. I would think that industries such as medical institutions or power companies would have more reason if these components caused failure of (example): life support equipment or the blackout of the North-East of the US. This is old news and the issue's that has allowed this to happen is always repeating itself. A good portion of the decisions are done by corporate heads and all the supporting staff such as contracts and procurement office. I feel for the manufacturing quality control (QA/QC) folks that finds these issues too late in the game. The issues are multifaceted and always occurs when one goes to a under developed country where the companies have to learn to overcome their lack of understanding around quality, integrity, and attitudes towards their new investors and country. Past examples are Taiwan and Korea where the companies had huge problems with RAM (random access memory) chips during the early years.
